Electronic Student Account Creation Consulting Services

SCOPE OF WORK:

Overview of consulting help needed to improve our account creation process and security:

We desire to improve the current account creation process of Active Directory/Microsoft 365 accounts for students. We are looking for help architect an approach to account creation that: Fits into Microsoft's support models; is consistent with best practices; is secure, supportable, and sustainable; and improves the speed and experience of the account creation for students. Upon defining an architecture, JJC will solicit vendors who can implement the architecture and student account creation process and components desired.

Today, the active directory portion of our account process starts with our Ellucian Colleague ERP System (which runs on AIX Unix) generating a flat file after a student is accepted into the institution with the student information required to generate, modify, or terminate an Active Directory/Microsoft 365 account for students. This file includes generating the network/email per our naming convention. Three times a day, Microsoft Identify Manager (MIM) runs in batch to process to load this file and update our local Active Directory. On-premise Microsoft accounts are synchronized with Azure Active Directory in a separate process. Once accounts are created, students are directed to a JJC website running a custom developed program in Apron's WebWizard software which interfaces with our Colleague ERP and queries the student to provide information provided on their application (Last Name, SSN and DOB) to securely learn their Active Directory/Microsoft 365 username and to create their first time password.

The account creation process for staff at JJC today is different than students. Staff accounts are housed in the same Active Directory servers locally and in Azure, but are in a different domain. The account creation process starts with our new Workday ERP and leverages the standard Workday connector to Microsoft AD to create the account. Our Infosec team securely provides the hiring manager of new staff their Network/Microsoft 365 username and first-time password. From there, staff use Microsoft Self-Serve Password Reset (SSPR) to register and reset passwords using the Microsoft SSPR portal during their employment lifecycle to reset their password. In addition, this process enables the setup required for our Azure Multi Factor Authentication. Student will not be on Workday for several years, and an improved architecture is needed to bridge the gap for the next couple years.

The challenges of the current process for students account creation are:

- Between the delays for manual setup to kick off the MIM batch file, and the fact the MIM loads three times a day only, student wait time for account creation delays ability to enroll and begin their JJC journey.
- The process for students to receive their account name and setup their first password, is a custom created JJC program and not ideal per best practices and sustainability.
- The current process does not enable Microsoft Self-Serve Password Reset (SSPR) and the framework to turn on Multi Factor Authentication (MFA) for students.

JJC desires assistance to envision an improved architecture for a student account process which:

- Allows our ERP system to call MIM or other support API in near real-time student for account creation.
- Enables automation which can securely send students information on their account name and directions for how to setup their first password.
- Registration for students and subsequent use of Microsoft Self-Serve Password Reset (SSPR) to reset their password and enable Multi Factor Authentication (MFA) for students

Based on meetings reviewing this process, Microsoft and JJC came to the recommendation a big step and logical thing to do was replace MIM by turning on the Colleague->LDAP automation/AD integration. (The account creation custom process today was created before this was option.) If we had accounts created in Colleague synched to create them in LDAP/AP, we would be able to stop leveraging the MIM account creation process in batch. We also hope this would allow us to set up LDAP in a way to turn on pwregistration/pwreset in Microsoft using the personal email/info gathered at application in AD; to change from our custom first-time password program for students to use Microsoft.

There will also be need for some assistance to automate portions in Colleague/done manually to stage the account creation in ILM/DRUS before the call to what Microsoft helps architect. Today, we run custom programs in Apron's WebWizard software which populate the Colleague data of applicants to start the account creation process of a new student. In addition, Webwizard forms are used for student to create their first time password. The goal of this project is to replace the custom forms for password creation with pwregistration/pwreset in Microsoft. In addition, the initial creation of the student account we would like to kick off the process for creating the account, as soon as possible once Webwizard write the new student information to the Colleague Unidata database. Today, there is a delay and a portion of the account creation which is kicked off manual. The goal of this project is to automate, make as fast as possible this process, and interface into Active Directory with SSPR as mentioned above.

To address the challenges above we are soliciting quotes from vendors to:

- Engage with JJC to understand their current Active Directory (AD) and Colleague environments.
- Work with JJC to define fields and attribute in AD required to be created in synchronization; both the current MIM batch field mapping and staff Workday to AD mappings will be the main guides for assistance in this final definition.
- Review and replicate JJC's username naming convention and password policies for student account creation in Active Directory.
- Configure and enable Colleague to AD synchronization for fields, attributes, naming conventions and policies referenced above in JJC's TEST, then PROD environments
- Ensure AD account creation process connects with JJC process to populate new students in the Colleague database and ILM processes.
- Ensure user names, email addresses repopulate Colleague database.
- Populate AD with fields required to enable processes needed to enable Microsoft Self-Serve Password Reset (SSPR) services first time user name and password as well as subsequent passwords resets

Additional Vendor Requirement and Information

- Vendors looking for further information to provide a proposed statement of work must submit written questions which JJC will respond to all bidder with further details to help define.
- Bidders must provide hourly rates for all consultant types which are being proposed.
- To be considered for this project, vendors must provide evidence of previous experience in a project where they provide expertise in implementing Colleague ERP to Active Directory integration for other clients.
- All work in this project will be performed remotely; travel is not expected for this engagement, and vendors must be able to work leveraging JJC VPN and remote access tool for development.
- Vendors are expected to perform the work leveraging standard project management guidelines and will partner with JJC to ensure basic documentation for our project methodology of requirements, design, implementation and testing is defined and generated.
- A master service agreement between the bidder and JJC with mutually agreed upon terms and conditions for this engagement, as well as agreements to work within JJC defined security requirements, will be required before awarding and contract for services.
