Notes:

- 📖 Grade of C or better required
- 📖 TRS 101 – Transfer Success Course (waived with transfer of 90 credit hours or more)
- 📖 Core Experiential Learning Course – Determined by Major
- 📖 The Newberry Library Undergraduate Seminar offered every spring semester fulfills 6 credit hours of elective credit. The top changes each year and competitive enrollment prioritizes students in their junior and senior years. In consultation with assigned academic advisor, may count some or all of the course credit toward the major. Satisfies Experiential Learning requirement.

About Roosevelt University's Program:

Of the dozens of majors offered at Roosevelt University, philosophy is perhaps the one most closely aligned with the university's mission to educate socially conscious citizens. Through deep and precise reading in philosophical texts, students not only interrogate essential human questions, they learn thinking, writing and speaking skills that they may use in service of social justice. Philosophy students often go on to careers in law, education, medicine, business, science, mathematics, ministry, social work and many other areas.

In asking students to reevaluate their understanding of the human condition, philosophy courses encourage students to question fundamental beliefs and to appreciate the complexity of controversial subjects. Students learn to discern the important issues in life and become civically engaged. Studies demonstrate that philosophy majors generally have the highest scores of any major on law and graduate school standardized tests, and that the study of philosophy improves performance in STEM fields.
